Evidence for the Existence of God as the Creator is Overwhelming

In response to the March 27 letter on “creationism,” despite what the author states, there is in fact overwhelming scientific evidence for the existence of God and that He is the creator. Support for evolution is weak at best and new discoveries are increasingly strengthening the case for “intelligent design.” I have studied this topic extensively for almost 30 years and one of my lectures is titled the “Top 15 Evidences for God and Creation.” They are almost all of a scientific nature and include “information” (which comes only from a mind and never from a physical process), “formation of first life” (which is still an evolutionary “mystery”), “design and beauty of living things,” “fine-tuning of physics,” “abrupt appearance in the fossil record,” “human consciousness and language” plus several more fundamental and timeless arguments which are elaborated further on our website.

There is much more to creationism than “God did it.” God established the need for scientific study when He told our first parents to “rule over” and “subdue” the earth, and many of our scientific disciplines were established by Christians looking to “think God’s thoughts after Him.” Creation scientists practice real science (following the scientific method), just from a different starting point, which is an understanding that God exists and He is the creator.
